French Are Adamant Toward Surrendering Rights Accorded Them Under Versailles Treaty.

BRITISH CONFIDENT OF SOME COMPROMISE

Morgan and Paris Partner Deny Any Effort to Dictate Terms and Security of Loan.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, July 25.—Although the inter-allied conference marked time today, there was observable tension in the attitude of all of the delegates against submitting to dictation of the international financiers in formulating a protocol to launch the Dawes plan.

The French spokesmen, in expressing the views of Premier Herriot, were more unyielding than ever toward the surrender of any rights which France enjoys under the treaty of Versailles.

In American circles, it was stated that the Dawes plan was of such importance that it could not be jeopardized by the relatively unimportant disputes between the bankers and the delegates.

The British continued confident that a compromise would be reached on the question of security for a German loan that will satisfy both the bankers and the French politicians.

Making Concerted Effort.

Among all the experts—observers, advisers and delegates—there is a concerted effort to settle the differences which have beset the parleys for weeks and which at times have seemed to threaten the very existence of the conference. This afternoon Frank B. Kellogg, the American ambassador, went so far as to say that the problems of defaults and sanctions under the Dawes plan and their relations to security for the German loan would not necessarily have to be settled in London.

This view, however, is not shared by the other delegations, where it was said the issue the bankers have injected into the proceedings is paramount, and that as soon as it is settled, the conference can consider its work completed.

Despite the delays which have occurred, the atmosphere of the negotiations is said to be more optimistic.

ATLANTAN KILLED
IN AUTO MISHAP

Jasper Bell Meets Death Near Demopolis, Ala., While En Route to Visit Mother Here.

Jasper N. Bell, former Atlanta man and well known in this city, was killed almost instantly Friday morning when he leaped from his moving automobile near Demopolis, Ala. At the time of the crash, he, with a companion, was on his way from his home in Los Angeles to visit his mother, Mrs. W. S. Bell, and a sister, Mrs. Frank M. Stewart, both of Atlanta.

According to reports of the accident received here, Bell was driving when the car skidded, and thinking that the machine was about to overturn, he jumped over the door, falling by the side of the road. With no guiding hand at the steering wheel, the automobile swerved sharply to the side, a rear wheel running over the victim's body. The machine was brought to a stop after traveling a few feet, and the other man, who remained in the car, escaped unhurt.

Mr. Bell, who was 42 years old, was born in Atlanta, and resided here until moving to Los Angeles seven years ago. The trip was to have ended in his first visit home since moving to the California city. He was well known in Atlanta, and was a member of the First Christian church.

The body will arrive in Atlanta at 6:40 o'clock this morning, and funeral services and interment will be held here, arrangements to be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Persian Youth
Attacks Widow
Of Dead Consul

Mrs. Robert Imbrie's Veil Is Torn as She Rides Through Streets.

London, July 25.—Mrs. Robert Imbrie, widow of the American vice-consul who was beaten to death by a Persian mob, has also been attacked and insulted in Persia, according to a dispatch from Teheran to the London Times.

While Persian police stood by and made no attempt to interfere, Mrs. Imbrie is declared to have been attacked by a young man, who then spat upon her and tore the veil of mourning from her face as she rode in an automobile with a physician attached to the American mission.

The brutal youth then threw handfuls of gravel at the occupants of the car.

This incident, within a week of Major Imbrie's murder, on the eve of the religious festival of Moharram has roused the foreign colony, who fear a general outbreak of violence against all foreigners.

DETECTIVE CHIEF
ON TRAIL OF CLUE
IN DEATH MYSTERY

Leaves Chattanooga for Unknown Destination, Predicting Case of Skeleton Will Soon Be Clear.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 25.—Departure of Chief of Detectives W. H. Hackett for an unknown destination, with the prediction that the mystery surrounding the finding of a skeleton, believed to be the remains of Miss Augusta Hoffman, modiste, under a house in a prominent residential section here, would be cleared up on his return, featured the investigation of the case today.

W. H. Bennett and wife and son, William Bennett, of Rome, Ga., brought here to be questioned concerning the mystery, will be detained until the return of Chief Hackett. Miss Hoffman was a boarder at the home of the Bennetts when she disappeared in 1915.

Another link in the chain of evidence leading to the identification of the skeleton was obtained today when the owner of the property where the discovery was made told police that her attention had been attracted by a stench around the place at the time of the disappearance of the modiste.

Charles A. Parker, of Memphis, a nephew of Miss Hoffman, was questioned by the police today, but was unable to throw any light on her mysterious disappearance. He was also unable to identify any articles of clothing or other objects found in the grave as belonging to his missing aunt. Parker expressed a determination to aid in every way in solving the mystery and stated that he would prosecute the guilty parties if captured.

Youth Held at Headquarters. While the two elder Bennetts are being allowed to remain at a hotel during the night under guard, young Bennett, a world war veteran, is being detained in a room at police headquarters, although not actually under arrest.

A statement by Mrs. Campbell Cunningham, of Knoxville, a friend of the Hoffmans, that she believed that Nancy Bennett, sister of Miss Hoffman, had been put out of the way "because she knew too much," is receiving attention of the local police.

INSPECTION TOURS
BARRED TO SPEED ACTION ON BILLS

Leaves of Absence During Rest of Session Granted Only in Case of Illness or Death.

MANY MINOR BILLS
CONSIDERED FRIDAY

Bill to Increase Oil Inspection Fee Half Cent for Benefit of Roads Introduced.

Adjourning Friday until 9 o'clock Monday morning, the house of representatives went on record shortly before the final hour, as determined to pass on as many of the pending bills as possible during the rest of the session, by adopting a resolution, introduced by Knight of Berrien, barring any further committee trips or tours of inspection. It was pointed out that the short time left of the session precludes action on any reports which may be made on such trips. The resolution also provided that leaves of absence in the future will be granted to members only on grounds of illness or death in the family.

Friday's session was taken up by the passage of a number of bills of minor interest. At the hour of adjournment, the committee bill to adjust the state game and fish laws was under debate, and this will come up for final action the first thing Monday. The bill was drawn by the committee on game and fish after careful investigation of the fishing industry in the coastal counties, with the collaboration of Peter S. Twitty, state game and fish commissioner. There is little opposition and the measure is expected to pass by a large majority.

Pass Two Bills.

A measure providing for assessment and collection of taxes on railroad equipment companies was passed. It was introduced by Representatives Elders, of Fannin, and McCrory, of Shelby. Another bill by McCrory, exempting pony homesteaders from the law requiring advertising of the homestead, was also passed.

A measure to amend the act providing for inspection of fuel oils, so as to increase the inspection fee from one-half a cent per gallon to one cent per gallon, was introduced Friday by Representatives Harris, of Jefferson, and Moore, of Appling. The additional half-cent is set aside for the highway department. It is claimed by proponents of this measure that the half-cent tax collected from the oil companies represents, in practice, an additional cent per gallon paid by the consumer, the companies simply Guard Beaten Insensible With Cudgel as Fulton Prisoner Flees Clayton Gang.

Jonesboro, Ga., July 25.—(Special.) Clayton county officers tonight continued the hunt for David A. Perkins, white convict sent up from Fulton county on a charge of robbery, who late Wednesday clubbed, fought and shot his way to freedom after overpowering Robert S. Murphy, a guard, near the Fayette county line. Perkins and a negro escaped, but the guard was killed.

Murphy is under care of doctors, who say his condition is serious, and poses continue to scour the woods into which the escaped prisoner is said to have disappeared after he beat off a man by the name of West, who attempted to stop him. Perkins used the pistol taken from Murphy to repel the attack and continued into the forest.

When Perkins and the negro escaped, after Murphy had been beaten insensible with a heavy cudgel, they went to a negro house, drove the occupants into a room, locked them up and used an axe and hatchet found there to free themselves from the chains, according to a report of officials. At the time of the escape the men were hauling lumber.

Fathers of Franks Slayers in Court

They have the wealth to wage endless legal battle and, perhaps, insure their sons being saved from the gallows, but Nathan Leopold, Sr. (left), and Jacob Loeb threw their sons, confessed slayers of Robert Franks, on the mercy of the Chicago court, in which a long, drawn-out trial was expected. In having their attorneys plead guilty for the boys, they asked that life imprisonment, and not death, be the punishment meted out. They are shown as they appeared in the courtroom.

RADIO EXPECTED TO INCREASE COST OF CAMPAIGNING

Rough Estimate of Expenses of 3 Presidential Campaigns This Year Set at Close to $15,000,000.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, July 25.—Campaign managers, figuring in their little books, are reaching the conclusion that their drives for votes this year are going to be rather expensive, perhaps more costly than ever before, and principally because of radio, which is going to be used extensively by all.

Though no official estimates have been made as yet, as the campaigns are still in a state of preparation and no one can tell just what needs will arise, it has been roughly figured that the cost of running the three campaigns will be between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000, perhaps more. The La Follette forces have figured they will need $3,000,000 in their drive, and have set out to raise it by contributions from their followers. The democrats and republicans will need probably $5,000,000 apiece to meet expenses. This totals $13,000,000. It may reach higher.

Radio to Come High.

And the accounts which will be turned in at regular intervals to Senator Borah and his special committee will contain many items for radio expenses. While radio broadcasting corporations have made no final prices as yet on what they will charge for speeches, it will be high.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company, in a preliminary statement, has announced that it expects to get $10 a minute, with a time limit of 10 minutes on campaign speeches. All three candidates are going to Rescue Crews Must Hew Way Through Debris of Shafts to Discover Fate of Men.

Gates, Pa., July 25.—Eleven to fifteen men are entombed in a soft-coal mine of the H. C. Frick Coke company here as a result of an explosion that occurred about 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The mine is reported to have been reduced to debris and rescue crews summoned from the entire section are endeavoring to force an entrance into the gas-filled chambers.

Dinner Ring, Costume Chain
New Gifts for "Miss Atlanta"

More gifts for "Miss Atlanta." As the list of entries swells in The Constitution's annual tournament to select Atlanta's fairest daughter to vie with beauties from a hundred American cities in the national beauty tournament in Atlantic City, so swells the list of gifts from local business concerns to the lucky winner of the south's premier beauty event.

While twenty new applicants were enrolling in the tournament Friday, two new gifts were announced for "Miss Atlanta."

The first of these was a handsome dinner ring in white gold, with an onyx setting in the center of which is set a beautiful diamond. The gift is to be presented "Miss Atlanta" by Ellman's, well-known jewelry establishment at 7 Edgewood avenue.

The second was a beautiful costume chain of hand-made imported beads from Miss Susan McClellan, of the Applied Artcraft studio, 27 Georgia avenue, Peachtree Hills Place, and secretary-treasurer of the committee from Kennesaw chapter, U. D. C., in charge of raising funds for erection of an observation tower and museum on top of Kennesaw mountain as a memorial to the Confederacy.

Miss McClellan, who is a well-known artist, illustrator and writer on arts and crafts, is making highly-artistic costume chains of beads of coral, jet, jade and crystal and is finding a ready market for them in the north and east, where they are in line with the latest of fashion's decrees.

"These beads," she said, "have never been exhibited in Atlanta, principally because Atlanta women have known little about them. I have chains to match any costume, and

AGREE UPON BASIS OF ANTI-FEE BILL

Main Features of Proposed Act Ironed Out at Meeting of Solons From Six Big Counties.

Agreement on the main features of a bill designed to do away with the fee system in the larger counties of the state was reported after an executive session Friday morning of the legislative representatives of the "big six" counties interested. A subcommittee has been working on the measure for the last two or three days and it is understood the report they made to the main committee was, in its principal items, satisfactory.

One change, it was said, was made by revising the population figure so that the bill will apply only to counties with 44,000 or more population, instead of those with 40,000 or more, as originally suggested.

It was also provided that in addition to the county commissioners setting the salaries to be paid to the county officers, they must be approved by a majority of the grand jurors. A motion to make it a two-thirds majority of the members of grand juries was defeated.

The bill will also include a referendum clause, it was decided, so that each county will vote on the issue before it is put into effect.

A point still undecided is said to be whether the new bill shall go into effect January 1, 1925, or January 1, 1926, sentiment on this point being divided in the committee. In some instances, it was pointed out, primaries have already been held and officers elected under the fee system for 1925.

The measure also provides that clerks of the superior court, tax collectors, tax receivers and sheriff shall come under its provision. The six counties represented at the meeting were Fulton, Chatham, Bibb, Richmond, Muscogee and DeKalb.

PARK COMMITTEE TO BE WELCOMED
BY STATE PARTY

Governor Walker, Mayor Sims and Atlanta Delegation To Meet Federal Officials at Gainesville.

DINNER WILL BE GIVEN IN HONOR OF VISITORS

Party to Locate Appalachian National Park Guests Sunday of Congressman Bell at Home.

Headed by Governor Walker, Mayor Sims and Paul H. Norcross, president of the chamber of commerce, a delegation of prominent Atlantans leaves at 11 o'clock this morning for Gainesville to participate in Georgia's welcome to the Appalachian National Park committee, which arrives from Washington at 3:28 o'clock, eastern time, this afternoon.

The reception committee of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce will also be joined by a party of Georgia newspaper men, traveling direct from Brunswick, where they attended the annual meeting of the association.

The committee, composed of nationally-known experts on park development, was appointed by Secretary of the Interior Work, at the suggestion of President Coolidge. Secretary Work is accompanying the committee on its tour of inspection of probable park sites.

Give Dinner to Committee.

Following the official welcome of the committee of the visitors will be guests of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce at a dinner at the White Sulphur Springs hotel, with Congressman Thomas M. Bell as master of ceremonies.

Sunday morning the party will proceed to Congressman Bell's home at Mount Yonah, where lunch will be served under the shadow of Georgia's most beautiful mountain peak. Motor trips through the picturesque Nacoochee valley to Clarksville, Cordele, Lakemont and Clayton will feature the rest of the day's program.

With the only national park east of the Mississippi located in Maine, the proposal to create another somewhere in the mountains south of Pennsylvania has gained much headway. Prospects for its location around the junction of Georgia with Tennessee and the Carolinas is now extremely bright, according to statements made Friday by B. S. Barker, secretary of the chamber of commerce, who is in charge of arrangements for the trip of the Atlanta committee.

Cover 6,000 Square Miles.

"The park is to occupy 6,000 square miles, which is more than Georgia alone can offer," Mr. Barker stated. "But Georgia and Atlanta will do all $25,000 Damages Asked by Tech High Student and His Father.

Suits for $25,000 were filed in the city court of Atlanta Friday against the city of Atlanta and R. S. Goulden, instructor in Tech High school, to recover damages for injuries alleged to have been received by Harold E. Nabell, of East Point, in the mill room of the school.

Young Nabell sued for $15,000, and his father, E. G. Nabell, for $10,000 for loss of his son's services. The petitions declare that on February 15, 1923, Goulden, who is one of the teachers at Tech High, instructed Nabell to operate a rip-saw in the mill room. The saw did not have a safety appliance, say the suits, and the youth's hand was caught and severely lacerated, so that he has not had his full use since.

The school is operated, owned and controlled by the city and the city is liable for the use of the apparatus without proper safety appliance and for alleged improper instructions, the suits claim. The petitions also allege that Goulden is liable jointly with the city.

Attorneys Carlton W. Binns, J. C. Shelor, and the firm of Dorsey, Shelton & Dorsey filed the suits.

Detective Sergeant Reveals Plan of Slayer To Plead Guilty "To Save His Neck."

SLAYERS NOT SORRY

Leopold Had Planned Suicide by Poison if Caught but Sudden Arrest Foiled His Scheme.

BY H. H. ROBERTSON.

Chicago, July 25.—Arogant even after they had broken down and confessed killing 14-year-old Robert Franks, Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., declared they did not regret their crimes and defied the authorities to try to hang them.

This information was disclosed before Chief Justice John R. Caverly in the criminal court here late Wednesday by three police detectives, who State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe put on the stand. They were the detectives who did the actual work in shattering the ingenious alibis offered by the two 19-year-old multi-millionaires' sons when police were questioning them about the Franks murder. Detective Sergeants J. J. Gortland, William Crot and Detective Frank Johnson furnished the testimony.

Professes Spartan Code. "In my code, murder is no crime," Leopold testified. Leopold said to him shortly after he had confessed. "My only crime is in getting found out. I am not sorry for anything I have done, but I am sorry I was caught."

Gortland testified he asked Leopold whether he was not sorry for Robert Franks.

"What did he say?" Crowe asked. "He replied: 'Not a damn bit,'" Gortland answered.

The detective testified he then asked the killer whether he was sorry for the Franks family and Leopold, he said, answered:

"Reply Is Flippant.

"I don't care if they all croak tomorrow."

"What did Leopold tell you about how he intended to avoid hanging?" Crowe asked.

"He said: 'If my family want me to hang, which they don't; they'll let me be tried before a jury. But if they want me to go to prison or be confined, or get a life sentence, they'll have me plead guilty before a friendly judge.'"

Sergeant William Crot said that he talked to Leopold for hours and that the youth had expressed much resentment against Richard Loeb.

"What did he tell you he would have done, if he had known Loeb had told on him?" the prosecutor queried.

Revealed Suicide Plan.

"The lad answered: 'If I had known Loeb was going to peach, I could have killed myself while we were looking for the glasses in my house. There was a gun in my room. I could have taken a couple of cops along with me, too.'"

The detective continued: "Leopold

CHAIR MAY YET REPLACE NOOSE

Ending the week with a quiet session Friday, the Georgia senate adjourned until 11 o'clock Monday morning. The only important action taken by the upper house during the day was its decision by unanimous vote to reconsider the bill by Senator Phillips, of the eighteenth district, providing for substitution of the electric chair for hanging. The measure was defeated in the senate Thursday by a vote of 18 to 17, while a similar bill passed the lower house.

Action of the senate in reconsidering the measure will permit passage of the house bill or the senate bill, provided the necessary majority can be obtained when the question is voted upon again.

A bill by Senator Redwine, of the twenty-sixth district, which would amend the act of 1919 relative to consolidated public school system, was passed by the senate. The vote was 29 to 0. The object, it was explained, is to restore an appropriation of $200,000, originally voted to come from rentals of the Western & Atlantic railroad. These rentals have been allocated for other purposes for five years, and the measure would provide that $100,000 for maintenance of high schools and $100,000 for common schools be paid from the general school fund.

May Amend Parks Code. The upper house adopted a resolution by Senator Pace, of the thirteenth district, approving a compilation of the constitution of the United States by the state legislative reference librarian, and commending her work. The vote on the resolution was unanimous.

After discussion of a bill by Senator Beauchamp, of the 22d district, and Senator Redwine, of the 26th district, to amend the Parks code, relative to maintenance of local school districts by poll taxes, consideration of the measure was postponed until next Tuesday. The effect of the bill would be to put local school districts on the same basis as municipal schools of the state.

The committee on the state sanitarium recommended for passage a bill which provides that two of the ten trustees of the state sanitarium at Milledgeville shall be women. The bill previously had been ordered back to the committee for perfection.

Eight House Bills Passed. The senate passed the following house bills: the act incorporating the academy of Social Circle.

To repeal an act to abolish the office of county treasurer of Hancock county.

To repeal an act to create a board of commissioners of roads and revenues for the county of Bryan.

To create a board of commissioners of roads and revenues for Bryan county.

To create the office of commissioner of roads and revenues for Bartow county.

To prescribe the time for holding superior court in Wilcox county.

To amend an act creating a new charter for Ashburn.

Negro Sunday School Convention to Come To Close on Sunday

The Sunday school convention and institute for Christian workers, meeting for the past five days in Trinity A. M. E. church, south Atlanta, under auspices of the south Atlanta district with Rev. J. A. Hadley, D.D., presiding elder, comes to a close Sunday night.

L. M. Tomlin, one of the special workers, stressed the duty of the church to help make good church members and citizens. Dr. Z. A. Collins, Dr. A. A. Matthews, Dr. J. E. McCane and G. P. Taylor were among the prominent workers of Friday's sessions.

Dr. J. W. E. Linder and Dr. Ward today will give statistics of church and sanitation among members of the race.

Sunday's program follows: 11 a. m., Bishop J. S. Flipper, D. D., L. L. D., will preach.

3 p. m., Missionary and education mass meeting.

8 p. m., Rev. J. G. Brown will preach.

SEEK COUNTIES USING AUSTRALIAN BALLOT

In order that he may be better able to answer requests for information regarding procedure in entering candidates in the November election, Secretary of State S. Guyt McLendon has asked W. Cecil Neill, speaker of the house of representatives, to assist him in ascertaining the number of counties of Georgia which have adopted the Australian ballot system as provided in the Neill election law.

Secretary McLendon states he has received many requests for information regarding the workings of this law, and that the knowledge of what counties have had experience with it will materially aid him in answering the requests.

One candidate, said Secretary McLendon, has already filed formal notice with the secretary's office of his candidacy in November for president. He is President Calvin Coolidge. Requests for information on the necessary procedure have also been received from supporters of Senator La Follette.

SENATOR HOWELL TO AID COOLIDGE

Washington, July 25.—President Coolidge was assured today of the support and services in the national campaign of Senator Howell, of Nebraska, one of the republican members of the senate who often has voted against the administration and with the group headed by Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin.

Returning to Washington after a month's stay in his home state, Senator Howell called at the white house to discuss political and agricultural conditions and to offer to Mr. Coolidge his support and his services as a campaign speaker in Nebraska and in nearby states. He predicted a close fight in Nebraska and said there was considerable sentiment prevailing for Senator La Follette.

Advancing prices of grain, Senator Howell declared, had helped the farmers of Nebraska, but in view of the present state of the corn crop would not entirely relieve distress in the agricultural sections.

The Nebraska senator while making it plain that he had not been delegated to speak for his colleague, Senator Norris, said he did not expect Senator Norris to bolt the republican party.

Mr. Coolidge also discussed politics, particularly Pennsylvania politics, today with Senator Pepper, of that state, and E. A. Van Valkenburg, publisher of the Philadelphia North American who were guests at luncheon at the white house.

TEXAS STATE PRIMARY WILL BE HELD TODAY

Dallas, Texas, July 25.—Three candidates for the democratic nomination for United States senator from Texas, nine for the nomination for governor, and more than 30 others for various state offices, in addition to governor, closed their campaigns tonight. The first democratic primary will be held tomorrow and will eliminate all but two for each office. Where there are more than two candidates, in case of three or more candidates, if one gets a majority, he will be nominated. If none gets a majority, the two high men will be voted upon again August 23.

The candidates for senator are Senator Morris Sheppard, John F. Madison, Harris county, and Fred W. Davis, Austin county.

2 LEADERS QUIT G. O. P. TO BACK LA FOLLETTE

Chicago, July 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Resignations of Ira S. Lorenz, Milwaukee, republican national committeeman from Wisconsin, and Mrs. Luther N. (Julia Anderson) Schmitz, Racine, Wis., republican national committee woman from that state, were tendered by them today.

The letter of resignation contained no reason for the action, William Butler, national chairman, said. However, Representative J. M. Nelson, republican congressman from Racine, Wis., declared that "Mr. Lorenz is a La Follette man, and resigned in order not to embarrass any one nor embarrass himself."

Mr. Butler said the vacancies would be filled by the executive committee. Mr. Butler further announced that the move of the La Follette campaign committee relative to the congressional campaign had been answered by the republican committee. Congressman Will R. Wood, of Indiana, and Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, chairman of the house senate republican congressional committee, will travel extensively from now until November, but will make their headquarters at Chicago and New York.

President Coolidge will make his speech-making that way, as he will not make an extended tour. John W. Davis will make numerous radio addresses. So will Senator La Follette, who, like Senator Greer, did not plan an extensive speech-making tour. Likewise, all the addresses that are made on tour will be broadcasted.

Davis Stump Much. Shaver explained Friday that while Davis would make many radio addresses, he would not by any means confine his campaign to the radio, an impression which he said seems to have gotten out. Davis, he explained, will conduct a "very active" traveling campaign, the details of which have not been worked out yet.

The victory clubs, which have been functioning for two years, will have a large part in financing the democratic campaign, Shaver said. The clubs seek small contributions from democrats throughout the country. They have been doing good work, Shaver stated.

He has assured Senator Borah, he said in a recent letter, that the democratic party will fulfill all the requirements fixed by the committee for campaign finance reports. He suggested in his letter, he went on, that the reports be made once a week or once every two weeks, instead of every ten days, as it would be more convenient in making up accounts.

McAdoo Clubs Tender Support. The national committee was tendered all the organization facilities throughout the 1,100 McAdoo clubs throughout the country by a delegation which called on Shaver at headquarters here. President Coolidge has begun the writing of his speech of acceptance of the republican nomination, to be delivered at the formal exercises here August 14, which will officially open his campaign. The speech is expected to be considerably longer than the 4,000 words to which John W. Davis has announced he will confine himself in his message of acceptance.

DETECTIVE CHIEF ON TRAIL OF CLUE

Mrs. Bennett died following the disappearance of the mediate and it has been reported that she was greatly grieved. Mrs. Cunningham was the supervisor of the establishment in which Miss Hoffman was employed at Knoxville. She declared that Miss Hoffman was void of romance and that she had not the least idea of the missing woman had married and left for another city, as claimed by the Bennetts.

Statements by the elder Bennett that during his residence here he had never deposited more than $200 in the bank at one time were contradicted shortly after the disappearance of Miss Hoffman, he had placed more than $800 to his credit on a particular day. He was not cross-questioned about this circumstance today, but detectives stated that he would be asked for an explanation later.

Mrs. J. S. Hunt, owner of the property where the skeleton of a woman was found, admitted to detectives that she had not been cross-questioned about this circumstance today, but detectives stated that he would be asked for an explanation later.

Before leaving the city Chief Hackett warned the Bennetts that if they made any effort to secure a habeas corpus writ in an effort to escape, detention warrants charging murder would be served upon them at once.

RECORD OF WOMAN'S PROPERTY SOUGHT

Knoxville, Tenn., July 25.—Miss Augusta Hoffman never owned real estate in Knox county under that name, a search of the records at the court house here today revealed.

Miss Hoffman, whose skeleton is believed to have been unearthed in Chattanooga, under the floor of the house where she lived, did have an account in the defunct Knoxville Bank and Trust company which failed in 1913, according to an employee of the bank who kept the records.

A search is now being made of the records to ascertain, who, if any one, indorsed the checks which were paid out in the liquidation of the bank after Miss Hoffman disappeared from her home in 1915.

Friends of Miss Hoffman here say she married Wood Long, about twenty years ago, and that she later divorced him, but it is a fact Miss Hoffman also used the name "Lula" in her business transactions as it is Lula Long, wife of Wood Long, who figured in a number of real estate transactions.

INSPECTION TOURS BY SOLONS BARRED

pocketing the other half cent. The bill, therefore, is intended to bring this extra half million or more per annum to the state, without increasing the retail cost of gasoline.

Would Retire Old Firemen. Another new measure Friday provides that members of paid fire departments in all cities and towns of Georgia may be retired on one-half pay for life after 25 years' service. It provides a similar pension for firemen incapacitated for duty by injuries received in the service and provides recompense for the dependents of firemen killed on duty.

The money to pay these contingencies is to be raised by levying a tax of one-half of 1 per cent monthly from the salaries of the firemen and one-half of 1 per cent of the premiums collected by fire insurance companies on property in the city. It applies only to departments with five or more paid members.

Representative Bussey was the author of a resolution designed to relieve the financial stringency at that time of the legislature. He would meet their requested appropriations of $100,000 for 1924 and $110,000 for 1925 out of the surplus placed in the treasury of the oil inspection fees.

A resolution to inquire into taxes due by the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad was introduced by Miss Kempton, representative from Fulton, by request.

Amend Albany Charter. A local bill to amend the act creating the new charter for the city of Albany, introduced by Representative Burt, of Dougherty, was passed. It revises the city voting laws, provides for a zoning system in building and provides for widening and improvement of certain streets, and the opening of some new ones. It also provides for extension of the city limits and issuance of street improvement bonds.

Representative Kempton, of Fulton, introduced another bill concerning the fee system of paying county officers in Fulton county. The new bill provides for a salary for the county clerk of the criminal court of Atlanta, provided that the salary, number of assistants and their salaries shall be set by the county commissioners. The bill provides that the solicitor shall, at least ten days before the first of January of each year, furnish the commissioners with a statement of the number of assistants and deputies he will need during the year, with recommendation as to their salaries, and also a statement of the other expenses connected with the office. The bill was referred to the committee on general judiciary No. 2.

PARK COMMITTEE HEADS SOUTHWARD. Washington, July 25.—(Special.)—

Heading southward, members of the southern Appalachian national park committee left here Friday night at 9:25 for Gainesville, Ga., where they are scheduled to embark Saturday afternoon at 3:28 to begin their inspection of tracts in northern Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia, for a national park site.

The delegation was headed by Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, who appointed members of the commission last February and has taken a keen interest in the project. Members of the committee are: H. W. Temple, chairman, and congressman from Pennsylvania; Major W. A. Welch, general manager of the Palisades Interstate park, New York; Harlan P. Kelsey, representative of the Appalachian Mountain club; Wm. C. Gregg, representative of the National Arts club, New York, and Colonel Glenn S. Smith, geological survey, Kentucky.

Secretary Work and members of the committee will be joined in the south by Stephen T. Mather, director of the national park service, who will accompany them on their survey of the various sites.

From Gainesville the party will proceed to Asheville, N. C., making a survey of the mountainous regions in that section, and then to Knoxville and its vicinity, looking over the Smoky Mountain fastnesses as far north as Cumberland Gap.

There is now only one national park east of the Mississippi, Lafayette national park in Maine. The others are all in the west. Estevan Lister has been shown in the proposed park throughout the south. Representatives Bell and Lee, of Georgia, took a special interest in the project and have taken a prominent part in fostering the present trip of inspection. Both these members of congress have introduced identical bills in the house to create a national park in Georgia. A similar measure has been presented to the senate by Senator Harris.

COOLIDGE LAUDS BOY SCOUT WORK

Washington, July 25.—Reverence for nature, for law and for God were laid down as the fundamentals of Boy Scoutism and of American institutions by President Coolidge in an address delivered tonight at the white house and transmitted by telephone to a farewell meeting in New York for a group of Boy Scouts who will sail tomorrow to attend an international gathering of the organization in Copenhagen.

"There was no Boy Scout organization in my boyhood, but every boy who has the privilege of growing up on a farm learns instinctively the three fundamentals of scoutism," the president said.

"The first is a reverence for nature. Boys should never lose their love of the fields and the streams, the mountains and the plains, the open places and the forests. That love will be a priceless possession as your years lengthen out. There is new life in the soil for every man. There is healing in the trees for tired minds, and for our overburdened spirits there is strength in the hills, if only we will lift up our eyes. Remember that nature is your great teacher."

Reverence for Law.

"The second is a reverence for law. I am thrilled at the thought of my audience tonight, for I never address boys without thinking that among them may be a boy who will sit in this white house. Somewhere there are boys who will be presidents of our railroads, presidents of colleges, bankers, owners of splendid farms and useful industries, members of congress, representatives of our people in foreign lands. That is the heritage of the American boy. It was an act of magnificent courage, when our ancestors set up a nation wherein any boy may aspire to anything. That great achievement was not wrought without blood and sacrifice. Make firm your resolution to carry on nobly what has been so nobly begun. Let this nation, under your guidance, be a finer nation. Resolve that the sacrifices by which your great opportunities have been purchased, shall be matched by a sacrifice on your part, that will give your children even a better chance."

Need Faith in God.

"The third is reverence for God. It is hard to see how a great man can be an atheist. Without the sustaining influence of faith in a divine power we could have little faith in ourselves. We need to feel that behind us is intelligence and love. Doubters do not achieve; skeptics do not contribute. Cynics do not create. Faith is the great motive power and no man realizes his full possibilities unless he has the deep conviction that life is eternally important and that his work, well done, is a part of an unending plan."

"These are not only some of the fundamentals of the teachings of the boy scouts, they are the fundamentals of our American institutions. If you will take them with you, if you will be living examples of them abroad, you will make a great contribution toward a better understanding of our own country, and receive in return a better understanding of other countries; for you will find in other lands, to a very large extent exactly what you carry there yourselves. I trust that you can show to your foreign associates in the great scout movement that you have a deep reverence for the truth, and are determined to live by it; that you wish to protect and cherish your own country and contribute to the well being, right thinking and true living of the whole world."

HOUSEWIVES WARNED OF CANNING COMPOUND

Washington, July 25.—(Special.) The housewife, who plans to use a preserving powder or a canning compound to insure the keeping of the fruits and vegetables she puts up this summer, is advised that the use of such powders may prove harmful to health, say the specialists of the United States department of agriculture, who have investigated these preparations.

Canning compounds usually contain salicylic acid or boric acid, although sold under different trade names and at a price much above their real value. While salicylic acid is a medicine useful in certain diseases, it is also known to be a poisonous substance, and its excessive use in canned foods may lead to serious disturbance of the health. Boric acid is recognized under the pure food law as harmful to health, and while it possesses some antiseptic value, it is not safe to depend upon it alone to prevent the growth of harmful bacteria in foods. The safest method is to prepare fruits and vegetables in a cleanly manner and to sterilize them properly. Instructions for the home canning of fruits and vegetables will be found in miscellaneous circular No. 24, which may be obtained from the United States department of agriculture upon request.

Shoemaker, Adviser Of President, Plans Legislative Race

Northampton, Mass., July 25.—James Lucy, shoemaker, staunch friend and early adviser of President Coolidge, may yield to the impetuosity of friends to become a candidate for the republican nomination for representative to the legislature. It became known today that he had agreed to do so provided the names listed on his nomination papers show that he has the unquestioned support of the party friend and early adviser of President Coolidge. This will be his first venture into politics.

WOMAN CONFESSES TO TARRING GIRL

Frederick, Md., July 25.—Eight men and one woman, arrested on warrants charging them with tarring and feathering Miss Dorothy Grandon, 20, of Martinsburg, W. Va., were arraigned before Magistrate Brust to-night and held for the September grand jury under bond of $2,000 each. Bail of $500 was fixed for Miss Grandon as a material witness.

Those arrested are Mrs. Mary Shank admitted applying the tar to the girl's face and neck; her husband, Calvin Shank; her father-in-law, Roma Shank; Harry Leatherman, Alvey Rice, Arthur Rice, Irwin Rice, Paul Grossnickle and Grayson Douth, all of near Myersville, Md. At the magistrate's hearing Mrs. Shank admitted applying the tar to the girl's face and neck. The other defendants declared their only object was to request Miss Grandon to leave the town. They took no part in the tarring and feathering, they said.

Some of those arrested today gave additional names of members of the mob, the magistrate said, but he was unable to say whether arrests would be made immediately, or the action of the grand jury awaited.

The episode took place about midnight last night while Miss Grandon, Miss Mabel Wills, two men companions whose names have not been learned and Miss Viola Kennedy were returning from Myersville to the latter woman's home, where all had been staying.

Miss Grandon and Miss Kennedy were walking ahead of the others when the mob approached in automobiles. Mrs. Shank, the magistrate said, confessed to beating the Grandon girl, stripping her and applying the tar and feathers. She was then abandoned in a semi-conscious condition, being found about half an hour later by James Whip, a farmer, who took her to his home. Remedies were applied and the greater part of the tar removed, but the girl to-night was still suffering from burns, bruises and shock.

SALARY INCREASE PETITION IS SENT TO LIBRARY BOARD

A plea for salary increases by Carnegie library executives, who are now paid from $190 to $215 a month, was referred to the library board for consideration by the finance committee of council Friday. Request for increases was made on the ground that raises recently were granted to other city employees.

Corns go quick this new way

Measure To Place Solicitor General On Salary Ready

Final draft of the bill to put the solicitor general of the Atlanta circuit on a salary, in lieu of the fee system, has been completed by the special committee of the grand jury and John Y. Smith, a member of the legislature from Fulton county, it became known Friday, when it was learned that the bill will be introduced next week.

The bill provides for a salary of $12,000 a year for the solicitor general, $6,000 a year for one legal assistant, $4,200 a year for another assistant, and $187.50 a month each for two special investigators to operate as detectives.

The solicitor general at present pays salaries, said to be $5,000 and $3,500, respectively, to his two assistants in the trial of cases. These are employed by the solicitor general himself and their pay comes out of revenues of the office from fees. Under the new bill, all fees of the office are to go into the county treasury.

Representative Smith declared he expected the measure to pass without trouble at the present session of the legislature.

"Gold-Brick" Days-- And Insurance

"Gold-brick days" have passed into oblivion.

But investments that pay phenomenal returns are still with us. As witness this case:

Sarah M. Farris, of 420 Jonesboro road, Atlanta, subscribed some time ago to a $1,000 Constitution Travel and Pedestrian Accident Insurance policy, merely agreeing to subscribe for a year to The Daily and Sunday Constitution and paying $1 for her policy.

The policy provides $1,000 protection against death in certain specified accidents, varying sums for injuries and $10 weekly indemnity for disability. Recently she was struck and injured by a street car on Lakewood avenue, from which accident she was disabled for four weeks.

Under the terms of her policy, she was paid the sum of $40 on July 16—this being a forty-fold return on a $1 investment.

In addition to its travel and pedestrian policy, The Constitution offers the only straight life insurance afforded by an Atlanta newspaper—its $500 Group Reader Life Insurance policy. The subscriber pays $500 protection against death in any form, and it costs only 15 or 20 cents per week, depending on the risk. The policyholder agrees to subscribe to The Daily and Sunday Constitution, and as long as payments on the policy and the subscription are maintained, the policy is in force.

These two great offers are unparalleled in point of economy and efficiency. If you have the welfare of your loved ones at heart, you will be interested in one or both of them. If you will phone, write or visit The Constitution's insurance department, full details will be supplied you.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STATION

Song of the Discontented.

I.

The snow is banked against the door.

The cold wind whistles by.

I hear the old man's sigh.

For I'm the discontented one.

O, for the burning sun!

To set the shivering world on fire!

II.

No pleasing prospect round about.

Since winter has his way.

The blizzard shuts the blue sky out.

The world is in a gloomy gray.

O, for the hot sun, climbing higher.

To set the shivering world on fire!

III.

Poor mortals, only born to growl.

All seasons running wrong.

When winter's cold wind comes howl.

"Lord, send the summer's song!"

So goes it, each season runs—

A world of discontented ones!

IV.

With Good Intention, However.

This one from the editor of the Odesa Democrat:

"Somebody who was evidently very thoughtful walked across the new street paving between this office and Johnson's grocery Saturday, and the concrete was yet soft, and the shoe tracks are still there. Yes, it was a woman's tracks and headed this way.

Showing that whoever it was was apparently coming to the Democrat office either to pay their subscription or bring in a want ad."

Jenny's Checks.

I.

O praise the alabaster cheek.

Fair as the petals of a rose.

Soft as a summer cloudlet which

The faintest zephyr gently blows.

II.

Were I but like the daring bee,

Who recklessly his wings slips.

Then might I wish to touch such cheeks.

III.

Hailed by hair of russet gold,

Whose wind-tossed curls play hide and seek.

With saucy dimples—laughterly cheek.

IV.

That dent each sunny, glowing cheek.

V.

In truth, I hunger not to touch

Such cheeks as these with finger-tips.

But yearn, each freckle thereupon.

To kiss with my lips.

ROSE HUBNER.

VI.

A Notable Campaign.

Southwest Georgia merchants are out for bigger business now, in a notable campaign of which the Tiffon Gazette says:

One of the leading commercial centers in south Georgia has decided to launch a mass advertising campaign, covering seven counties adjacent to that city, during the fall as a means of increasing the retail business done in that city. The first broadside will be fired on July 31, and all of the seven counties will be covered. Tifton merchants have been talking about such a campaign and the opening of the tobacco market would seem to be a good time to start.

VII.

The south sells her cotton and other commodity production in the east, and the east in turn sells her manufactured commodities in the south.

VIII.

The south sells her lumber and naval stores in the east, or exports the same through eastern agencies.

IX.

The southern banks have their correspondents in the east and the east looks to the south for the production to cover its financial advances.

X.

The two sections are linked by every business connection of value to each, and the one is dependent upon the other in every conceivable economic relationship.

XI.

The travel between the two sections is over-night. Because the south is agricultural and the far west agricultural, they do not have interests more in common than the interests of the south and the east.

XII.

In the west, grain—wheat primarily—is the money crop. In the south cotton is the major money crop, with a variety of other money crops dependent upon the east for marketing. The methods of farming are different; the acreage to the farm different; the places of marketing different; the distribution and the system of crop financing different.

XIII.

That vast west beyond the river is a great section of this great country with a great people, but too frequently with ideas in politics and economics that do not necessarily harmonize at all times with the sounder and more conservative ideas of the east and south.

XIV.

Puritan or Cavalier—It matters not which, the east and the south are linked by business ties too close to be misled by politicians of selfish, demagogic ideas and purposes who seek to estrange two great interdependent sections in the hope of a political alliance for the promotion of freakish "isms" and wildcat theories.

XV.

The Philadelphia Record well says: "If the criminals would only read the newspapers more they would realize how small a chance of success they have."

XVI.

There is a degree of comfort in the name of Davis. We have all known some mighty good folks by that name.

Just In Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLMON

The Georgia Press association made no mistake in reflecting Charlie

Rountree, of Wrightsville, its president. He is a live wire, if there ever was one at the handle end of a press pencil.

And in Ernest Camp, Miss Emily

Woodward and the other officials he has the ablest possible cooperation.

The entire personnel of officers for this association is excellent.

By the way, several of them, with other members of the association, are expected to meet Secretary of the Interior Work and members of the Appalachian national park commission at Gainesville this afternoon and form an escort through the north Georgia mountains.

A great deal of space has been given to the very excellent paper on bull weevil control read by Dr. R.

J. H. DeLoach. This paper was of a constructive nature that Dr. De-

Loach was requested to read it again at one of the meetings at points other than Waycross that were visited by the editors.

The address of J. D. McWhorter, of Winder, was one of the best I ever heard before a press convention. It was not only forceful in portraying the correct relationship that should exist between an editor and his readers, and the people generally of his town and community, but it was delivered with strong speaking effect.

The fact is McWhorter is simply a great speaker on any subject, and that quality, combined with the

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED OVER MUCH OF RUMANIA

Vienna, July 25.—The greater part of Rumania is reported to be under martial law, according to unconfirmed advices reaching Vienna. The government is said to have prohibited all public meetings, called in protest against present state institutions.

The reason for the reported decree is not known, but it is understood to be designed against the communist propaganda which is becoming more intense throughout the Balkans.

Coinciding with rumors of the critical Rumanian situation, Bulgaria is reported to be on the eve of dangerous political troubles.

S.S.S. stops Rheumatism

"MY Rheumatism is all gone. I feel a wonderful glory again in the free motion I used to have when my days were younger. I can thank S. S. S. for it all! Do not close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. S. S. S. is waiting to help you. When you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, the entire system undergoes a tremendous change. Everything depends on blood-strength. Blood which is minus sufficient red-cells leads to a long list of troubles. Rheumatism is one of them." S. S. S. is the great blood-cleanser, blood-builder, system strengthener, and nerve invigorator.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Women Now Find Morning Papers Easiest To Read

Have More Time Early in the Day, Survey Shows.

One of the most comprehensive surveys and analyses of newspaper circulation, subscribers' reading habits and preference buying power and reaction to advertising ever undertaken was recently concluded in St. Louis.

The analysis was made by the D'Arcey Advertising company for the Globe-Democrat and it is the result of personal calls by investigators at 110,000 homes in and around St. Louis' metropolitan area. Out of a possible 226,224 homes effective interviews were obtained at 80,797, or about one out of every three families comprising the 1,000,000 population of Greater St. Louis.

Precaution was taken to obtain impartial investigators; the field force was composed entirely of college students who were specializing in advertising or business courses, and as a rule they received credit from their college or universities for the work done on the survey. As a counter-protection for impartiality none of the field force was informed of the final purpose of the survey.

There were the main questions propounded for analysis by the investigators: "Exactly in which districts are economic conditions the best and which newspaper has the most favorable circulation distribution among the districts?"

"Which St. Louis newspaper reaches with least waste the real buyers?"

"Do women have time to read in the morning or evening?"

"Which St. Louis newspaper is read by the largest number of families owning automobiles?"

"What type of news is more interesting to the reading public in districts representing mass-classes of economic conditions?"

Some of the results appear previously conceived notions. For instance, over 60 per cent of the persons interviewed declared that they had more time to read newspapers in the morning than at night. Making this discovery all the more remarkable is the fact that about 70 per cent of those seen by the investigators were women.

Explanation of this is made in the following extract of the report:

"The great and increasing popularity of the motion picture, evening entertainments and the automobile has come as a natural phase of social progress, but it has demonstrated that the average family now takes less time than ever for reading. The rush of household duties pertaining to the evening meal is followed by a hasty departure in quest of relaxation and pleasure elsewhere. Labor-saving devices for the home—washing machines and vacuum cleaners—have given the women more time to read the morning newspaper."

FEMININE VOTERS PLAN LUNCHEONS FOR CANDIDATES

The Atlanta League of Women Voters will sponsor a series of candidates' luncheons at 12-30, every Tuesday at the Peacock cafe, and will hold a candidates' meeting at the chamber of commerce, August 8, and Friday, August 15. It was announced Friday by Mrs. Sanford Gay, president.

This will give every candidate with opposition an opportunity to speak before the members of the league and any other voters who wish to attend, she said.

Mrs. Gay urged that the luncheons and meetings be well attended as they are given for the benefit of all eligible voters and the candidates, and the league has gone to much trouble to arrange them.

Questionnaires on issues of the day have been prepared by the league's board, and are now in the hands of the printer. They will be sent to the candidates in the near future. The candidates' answers to these questionnaires will be read at an open meeting.

ECKERT IN ATLANTA AFTER LONG ABSENCE

O. E. Eckert, chemist and lubricating engineer for the Transcontinental oil company, of Pittsburgh, is visiting the Atlanta division of the company to study lubricating problems peculiar to the south.

Mr. Eckert lived in Atlanta 12 years ago, being a member of the leading clubs in the city and prominently identified in business circles. He is recognized as one of America's leading authorities on scientific lubrication, having devoted the greater part of his life to this subject.

During the world war he was in charge of the research laboratories of the Curtis Airplane company, and for the past few years he has been closely associated with the engineering departments of both the army and navy, and also the government bureau of standards.

LEOPOLD EXPOSES EXPECTED RESULT

told me a crazy story about some plans he had been considering for killing himself in the event he were caught. He did not make any plans for suicide, other than a few in his mind.

"Leopold said: 'I intended to get some headache tablets and a bottle of strychnine and take them. They would never have found this pill and I could have taken the poison as soon as I got alone. But I never told anything because I thought it was foolish.'"

Leopold also told me that the true reason for the crime never had been revealed, Crowe asked.

Motive Is Revealed.

The next day after the confession Detective Johnson testified he took an automobile ride with the two prisoners, members of the state attorney's staff and several policemen.

"During this trip Leopold told me that it was necessary to kill Franks after they had taken him in their automobile," he said.

"Why did Leopold say it was necessary?" Crowe asked.

"Because, he said, 'Franks' knew me,' Johnson answered.

In another conversation he had with Leopold the detective testified the prisoner had told him he did not hesitate to shoot to kill if he had any chance at any time to escape.

The sensational testimony of the three police detectives angered defense attorney S. Darrow, chief defense counsel, and Benjamin Bachrach, one of his associates. They declared that they would conduct lengthy cross-examinations of all three later in the hearing.

Defendants Unconcerned.

Leopold and Loeb were less concerned than their attorneys. They frequently smiled during the testimony and one Loeb chuckled audibly, a chuckle that was echoed a moment later by his colleague in crime.

Justice Caverly then ordered a recess of court and went to the county jail yard, where two automobiles were awaiting inspection. After a bailiff had rapped a fender with a stick and declared court was in session the justice looked at the two cars. Lawyers for both sides and a curious group had followed them into the place.

One car was a red sport model, the car owned by Leopold in which he told the police he was riding the night Franks was murdered. The other automobile was a green touring car. It had been driven by Loeb.

It was the car that the killers rented, the vehicle in which they lured Robert Franks away from his school, and the one in which Franks was struck over the head with a chisel.

Following this inspection, court was adjourned until 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Slayers Enjoyed Thrills.

Leopold and Loeb enjoyed the "thrill" of their brutal murder of young Robert Franks to the utmost when they joined in the hunt for the slayers immediately after the crime.

This testimony entered the hearing which will determine their fate just before Loeb and Leopold, apparently still relishing the proceedings, engaged in a dramatic clash of wills with Jacob Franks, the broken father of their boy victim.

Witness after witness had described how Loeb pretended to aid in the hunt for the murderers of Robert Franks, how he even suggested to young newspaper reporters that they conduct a search of stores to determine whether the kidnapers had telephoned Franks, how Loeb had expressed a wish in front of the Franks home that the boy's killers should hang.

Franks Arrives Late.

In the midst of this testimony Jacob Franks entered court. Pale and bent, he looked in vain for a seat and could find none. He had come late to attend Friday's session of the hearing and the courtroom was filled.

Just as he stepped inside the space reserved for newspaper people, court attaches, lawyers, and the judge, Franks heard Alvin Goldstein, a reporter testify:

"Leopold said: 'If I were to murder someone, Robert Franks is just the kind of a fellow I would pick out.'"

The stricken father straightened up with a jerk at the brutal, unprintable word. He directed a baleful glare in the direction of Loeb and Leopold, who were sitting sneering at the witness and frequently breaking into laughter.

Battle of Eyes.

A bailiff espied Franks and inadvertently motioned him to a chair at the front of the two slayers, and he separated from them by only a narrow aisle, about three feet wide. Franks, half-stunned, intensely angered at the testimony he had heard on his court entry, gazed at Leopold and Loeb with a burning intensity.

Finally Loeb saw the father of the boy he had helped murder and again his brazenness came to the front. He started to stare back at the bereaved parent, to look him squarely in the face with an affront that amazed spectators who happened to witness the grim drama.

Franks drew himself together and thrust his body forward from the hips. To those near him it seemed as if he were about to hurl himself at the defiant 19-year-old intellectual, in an avalanche of resentment. But whatever Franks may have intended to do at that moment, he did not carry out his intention.

Leopold returned Franks' gaze. But he could not bear to face the man whose son he had assisted in killing and he turned away.

Loeb Tries Hypnotism.

Loeb, brazen and insolent, the same youth who had tried to stare State Attorney Robert E. Crowe out of countenance at moments in the prosecutor's opening address when he was facing the slayers, stared at Franks with an ever-increasing menace in his eyes.

An accomplished hypnotist, Loeb had learned in sessions with young Chicago university students how to concentrate his gaze effectively and perhaps he was trying one of his strange accomplishments on the father of his victim. But righteous indignation at the amazing cruelty exhibited by Loeb had armed Franks in a way that not even the slayer's hypnotic eyes, now narrow almost to pinpoints, could overcome.

Franks Is Victor.

With increasing hatred Franks and Loeb kept their eyes on each other as they continued their strange duel of wills. Few in the court room had caught the significance of the gripping struggle and it was several minutes before an assistant state attorney realized that the father of the murdered boy and one of the murderers were trying to stare each other down.

The trial suddenly halted as Crowe called over one of the defense counsel. A bailiff then produced another chair and Franks, trembling and incensed, was conducted to a new position, far in back of the unnatural pair who had abducted and murdered his son.

But before Franks had taken his new seat he had forced Loeb to drop his eyes. The father, outraged by Loeb's attitude and gaze, had accomplished what none of the detectives or prosecutors who had questioned the young slayer were able to do.

Slayers Are Downcast.

Loeb was downcast for a few minutes afterwards. He gazed speculatively at the floor. He was deep in thought. Then he leaned over and whispered to Leopold. During most of the day thereafter Leopold had rather a harassed, worried expression. Perhaps in the eyes of the bereaved Franks he had fancied he read his own doom.

Loeb was portrayed by three young reporters as a Sherlock Holmes hunting himself down for his own crimes. Howard G. Mayer, Alvin Goldstein and James Mulroy, newspapermen who had worked on the Franks case immediately after Robert's body was discovered, took up a large portion of the day's session with their testimony.

Mayer, a former University of Chicago student, became acquainted with Loeb about one year ago, he testified. On May 23, two days after young Franks had been kidnapped and killed, Mayer met Loeb on the campus.

"I was going to discuss the Franks case," the reporter said he would like to find some trace of the slayers, and Loeb replied, Mayer testified:

"I said, 'If you were to send Franks with the $10,000 to a drug store on Sixty-third street, the kidnapers would not meet him there, in that crowd. They are smart men. There would be some word left for him there. They would telephone or leave word of some kind for Franks to meet them.'"

So Mayer and the three newspapermen started out to see if they could find any store where an attempt had been made to telephone Jacob Franks, where word had been left for them. The searching party made numerous inquiries without result and finally arrived at the store of Van de Bogert & Ross.

Received Two Calls.

"We talked to the porter and he told us that the telephone calls had come into the store the day before for a Mr. Franks," the witness said.

"I also said that during one of the calls there had been a request made to ask persons in the store if Mr. Franks was there. The porter said he frequently smiled during the testimony and one Loeb chuckled audibly, a chuckle that was echoed a moment later by his colleague in crime."

Beginning of Doubt.

Mayer first commenced to doubt Loeb, he testified, when he and Leopold began telling conflicting stories. "I went to Samuel Ettleson, attorney for Mr. Franks, and told him I believed Loeb was lying," the witness said.

Then Goldstein, the witness said, talked to Loeb, who was being held as a suspect. I talked to Dick alone and I told him that if he wanted to clear himself he must talk to me. So he finally agreed to talk and I called in Assistant State's Attorneys Starbaro and Cronson. Dick told a story of where he had been and what he had done on the day of the murder that tallied in every respect with that told by Leopold earlier in the day."

Trying to Clear Friend.

"On Decoration day I talked to Loeb and urged him to tell anything he might be concealing, for I believed something was wrong," the witness continued. "I did not think he had anything to do with the crime, he seemed perfectly willing somebody."

"You were looking for a store?" Crowe asked.

"No, I was not," Mayer replied. "I was trying to clear him as a friend."

Goldstein's testimony was for the most part corroborative of Mayer's. Crowe had difficulty in inducing the witness to tell what Loeb had said to him about Robert Franks two days after the murder.

"Well, did Loeb say anything to you about the slain boy?" Crowe persisted.

"Yes, he used some expulsive in connection with him," Goldstein answered.

Loeb's Idea of Punishment.

Crowe finally succeeded in persuading the witness to use the language concerning young Franks that the elder Franks heard as he came into court.

Goldstein, recalled later, told of a conversation Loeb had with the three reporters in front of the Franks home after the murder.

"We went there to see members of the family," he testified, "and Loeb was along with us. Loeb shook his head and said: 'It's a terrible crime. Whoever did it ought to be strung up.'"

Two dapper young men, close associates of Nathan Leopold in the study of ornithology, furnished testimony concerning the slayer's frequent visits to the place where Robert Franks' body was found.

George Lewis, handsome as any movie hero, told how he and Leopold had gone out hunting for birds and added that he made such rapid progress that Leopold told him he would become one of the foremost authorities on birds in the United States.

"We frequently visited the swamp where Franks' body later was found," Lewis testified, "but when I learned of the murder I did not connect my instructor with the crime."

"Later, I began to recall something funny Leopold had done. On the morning of May 22, about half past 8 o'clock, Leopold telephoned me and asked me if I would take one of his classes out that day, as he had other and more pressing business to take up his time. He said he wanted me to take the party to Jackson park and when I asked him whether some of the members might want to go to the swamp (the swamp where Robert Franks' body then lay), he replied that the members were all little girls."

ALIMONY SETTLED IN CANDLER CASE DECLARE REPORTS

Reports Friday that Asa G. Candler, Sr., had settled a large sum of money—probably $100,000—on his wife, whom he recently sued for divorce, led to the belief that Mrs. Candler would not file a defense to the divorce action and would not seek alimony. Attorneys connected with the case refused to discuss the matter.

Mr. Candler sued for divorce following a separation, which came after Mrs. Candler's arrest in connection with a liquor raid upon a Juniper street apartment. When the case came up for trial she was acquitted.

Leopold Shows Worry.

"Yes," the following Sunday, Leopold told me he had been bothered by the police in connection with the Franks case. He said he had been asked to give the names of other ornithologists who had gone to that swamp and he said he was worried by continual questioning from the police about a pair of glasses.

"Leopold told me these glasses had some connection with the murder of Franks. He asked me if I had two pairs of glasses and if I had lost either pair, or if I had both pairs. I told him that I had owned only one pair."

"What else did Leopold say to you?" Crowe asked.

"He suggested to me that I keep what he had said about glasses to myself and he asked me not to say anything to my parents about the conversation."

Leopold's First Statement.

Sidney Stein, curly-haired, with a part straight up the middle, told how he and Leopold both had worn horn-rimmed glasses on frequent visits to the swamp where Franks' body was found.

Stein wore his glasses in court. He testified that he had visited the swamp the Sunday before the murder with Leopold and Lewis. Police Captain Thomas C. Wolf then took the stand to identify a statement Leopold had prepared for him concerning his movements the day of the murder. This statement was in Leopold's handwriting. It denied all knowledge of the crime and said that Leopold and Loeb were busy visiting cabarets trying to induce girls to accompany them and become intoxicated the night of the day Franks disappeared.

Used Franks Case as Study.

Ernest Pattkemmer, professor of criminal jurisprudence at the University of Chicago law school, caused a sensation during the afternoon session with testimony that Leopold, the student, had come to him after the

TO SPEND $32,000,000 FOR FIGHT ON FAMINE

Moscow, July 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The soviet government has appropriated $32,000,000 for the purpose of coping with the threatened famine in Russia, according to an announcement just made by the central committee of the communist party.

Of this amount $15,000,000 will be used for seed and the rest for the direct assistance of the peasants in the worst-affected areas.

The central committee's announcement says that this year's shortage of grain will be 150,000,000 pounds. (A good represents 36.113 pounds.) It says that only seven or eight million persons will be affected by this year's crop failure, while in 1921, 30,000,000 were affected.

The committee insists that crop failures will apply only to certain limited areas and in these the government is taking every precaution to meet the needs of the population.

NEW GIFTS OFFERED FOR "MISS ATLANTA"

When "Miss Atlanta" is selected, I shall ask Mr. Martin Amoroso, Jr., who is to create gowns for the city's reigning beauty, to select a chain to suit any one of her costumes.

"Beautiful things for the beautiful" was the statement from Elman's in announcing its gift of a beautiful dinner ring. "In line with that statement, we have selected a magnificent dinner ring from our big stock of jewelry and will ask 'Miss Atlanta' to accept it as a tribute from us. Little things count for much in making up a complete costume, and our ring will do its part toward equipping 'Miss Atlanta' as well or better than any other beauty in the tournament."

Special invitation to all pretty girls of the studio and the sixth floor of the Constitution building, including DeCatur and any part of Fulton county, to visit the studio of Mathewson & Price, on the sixth floor of the Constitution building, to be photographed and entered in the tournament, has met with ready response during the past two days.

As a result, the same invitation is repeated today.

Invited to Studios.
Photographers will be on hand throughout the day, and any pretty girl who desires to become an applicant for the title and numerous honors to be paid "Miss Atlanta" is cordially and personally invited to come to the studio on the sixth floor of the Constitution any time today and enter the tourney.

Those who may wish otherwise, may phone the studio of Wesley Hirschberg, well-known Whitehall photographer, and make a definite appointment with Mr. Hirschberg for a photograph.

The second week of the tournament is fast drawing to a close, and nearly 200 beautiful Atlanta girls have entered their names in the tourney. The management of the tourney is particularly desirous of enrolling every pretty girl in the city in order that "Miss Atlanta" may truly represent the city in the most famous of North American beauty events.

Selects Own Chaperon.
"Miss Atlanta," in addition to being the recipient of many handsome and elaborate gifts of wearing apparel and jewelry, will be allowed to select her own chaperon to accompany her to Atlantic City, and all their railroad and sleeping accommodations will be paid.

While in Atlantic City they will be guests of honor at one of the magnificent boardwalk hotels and will take part in a solid week of gorgeous carnival events on the fashionable boardwalk of America's most famous ocean resort. "Miss Atlanta" will compete with 100 other inter-city beauties for handsome trophies and the title of "Miss America," the nation's most beautiful girl.

In the photographs of entrants published in Friday morning's Constitution, the picture of Miss Polly Rainey, of 30 Cascade place, was erroneously reported to be that of Miss Betty Ashurst, of 1016 Piedmont avenue.

Remember that the invitation extended to enter the tourney is a personal one. Clip out the following entry coupon, fill it in properly and present it to the photographer today:

SOUTH'S SPEED BOATS RACE AT SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., July 25.—The speed boat races, driven by T. P. Saffold, commodore of the Savannah Motor Boat club, roared off six laps to first place in the free-for-all race and won the south Atlantic championship in the second day of the first annual Savannah water carnival today. The Hilda made its six laps in 23 minutes, 47 seconds and clocked off a time of 5:06 on the last lap.

Miss Savannah III, with Porter G. Pierpont at the helm, came in second in the free-for-all with a time of 5:41.31, and Miss Pasadena, of St. Petersburg, a hydroplane, took 5:46.10 to win third place. The hydroplane was in fourth in 5:49.25. The Hilda was in fourth in 5:49.25.

Driving the Miss Dixie, Wallace Pierpont III made his debut as a motorboat racer and won first place in the semi-speed boat race. Carl Asendorf won first place in the two-cylinder outboard motor race and the Seminole Canoe club, of Jacksonville, walked off with the honors in the canoe race.

Crowds flocked to Thunderbolt early in the afternoon for the events, and by the time the program was started, the bluff from the Casino to the Shivers' club was lined with spectators so thickly that the land could hardly be seen.

The yacht Nannon, owned by Dr. P. C. Wilson, was the official flagship of the day. The tug McCauley, of the Atlantic Towing company, added its stately presence to the boats on the river and the United States engineers' yacht Isodora was handsome in its decoration of flags. The steam cutter Tybee, two motor launches from coast guard cutter Yamacraw and a motorboat, formed the patrol, which kept the course clear.

Mrs. Venable, who was 68 years old, was born in Virginia, and moved to Atlanta fifteen years ago. She was the widow of H. D. Venable. Her father, a descendant of Jefferson and a member of an old and distinguished family in the state, was engaged in the railroad contracting business for many years.

Mrs. Venable was active in church and civic work here and was a member of the Presbyterian church.

She is survived by two daughters, Misses Caroline and Virginia Venable, both of College Park; a son, Thomas J. Venable, also of College Park, and two brothers, J. J. Elphing, of Danville, Va., and S. L. Jefferson, of Rome, Ga.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son.

LINES PENNED AT THE SEASHORE.

By George S. Chappell.
Alternately for and sun
Work their will upon my hide,
Dampened every morn by one,
By the other daily tried.
Damp, the garments that I wear,
Hot, my brow, and peeling, too;
Stiffly glutinous, my hair,
Hard to get the comb through.
Busted, all my racket strings,
Warped, my clubs, from grip to head,
Slipsy, all my flannel things,
Denk the pillow on my bed.
Ocean, you're the Bunk, old Dear,
But I ask of you no pity,
For I'm going away from here—
Goo-bye, Ocean; O you City!

Cooperation.

"Ah, Gerald, if you could only love like that," sighed the maid, as they watched the final fade-out on the screen.
"Maybe I could," replied Gerald, "if I had a couple of high-salaried directors telling me how."
—Mrs. Hugh Harris.

Short and Sweet.

Shoe Salesman: "Aren't you the young lady that called last week for a pair of shoes with a short vamp?"
Indignant Patron: "Sir! That was my sister!"

LEAP YEAR.

By E. P. Malone.
They tell me this is leap year and I know that it is true,
It's been impressed upon me till I know it through and through,
Old Lady Luck's been with me and I've kept alive so far,
For every year is leap year for a man without a car.
They say that leap year only comes once in every four,
But that's not true, I've leaped so much that it's got to be a bore,
And up until the present I've escaped without a scar,
For every year is leap year for the man without a car.
But I am apprehensive as I walk from day to day,
That sometime I'll forget to leap or leap right in the way,
And if I do I'll pretty sure my features it will mar,
Every year is leap year unless you drive a car.

Too Convincing.

"If I hadn't overplayed my hand, I would have landed a fifty thousand dollar policy this morning," remarked the insurance solicitor.
"How was that?" inquired the manager.
"I put the fear of death into the prospect so strongly that he is sure he can never pass a medical examination."
—The Modern Version.

First Sheik: "Never chase a woman or a street car. You know the old saying, 'Another will be along in a minute.'"
Second Sheik: "Yeh, and if you wait long enough the same line will be coming back."
—Jack Wood.

Could He Be Exchanged?
Little Helen had had a severe scolding from her father and was brooding over her wrongs.
At last she blurted out: "Mamma, how long have we had papa?"

White Fang

BY JACK LONDON

To man has been given the grief, often, of seeing his gods overthrown and his altars crumbling; but to the wolf and the wild dog that have come in to crouch at man's feet, this grief has never come. Unlike man, whose gods are of the unseen and the over-guessed, vapors and mists of fancy eluding the garmenture of reality, wandering wraiths of desired goodness and power, intangible outcroppings of self into the realm of spirit—unlike man, the wolf and the wild dog that have come in to the fire find their gods in the living flesh, solid to the touch, occupying earth-space and requiring time for the accomplishment of their ends and their existence. No effort of faith is necessary to believe in such a god; no effort of will can possibly induce disbelief in such a god. There is no getting away from it. There it stands, on its two hind-legs, club in hand, immensely potential, passionate and wrathful and loving, god and mystery and power all wrapped up and around by flesh that bleeds when it is torn and that is good to eat like any flesh.

And so it was with White Fang. The man animals were gods unmistakable and unescapable. As his mother, Kiche, had rendered her allegiance to them at the first cry of her name, so he was beginning to render his allegiance. He gave them the trail as a privilege indubitably theirs. When they walked, he got out of their way. When they called, he came. When they threatened, he cowered down. When they commanded him to go, he went away hurriedly. For behind any wish of theirs was power to enforce that wish, power that hurt, power that expressed itself in clouts and clubs, in flying stones and stinging lashes of whips.

He belonged to them as all dogs belonged to them. His actions were theirs to command. His body was theirs to maul, to stamp upon, to tolerate. Such was the lesson that was quickly borne in upon him. It came hard, going as it did, counter to much that was strong and dominant in his own nature; and, while he disliked it in the learning of it, unknown to him, it was learning to like it. It was a placing of his destiny in another's hands, a shifting of the responsibility of existence. This in itself was compensation, for it is always easier to lean upon another than to stand alone.

But it did not all happen in a day, this giving over of himself, body and soul, to the man animals. He could not immediately forego his wild heritage and his memories of the Wild. There were days when he crept to the edge of the forest and stood and listened to something calling him far and away. And always he returned, restless and uncomfortable, to whimper softly and wistfully at Kiche's side and to lick her face with eager, questioning tongue.

White Fang learned rapidly the ways of the camp. He knew the injustice and greediness of the older dogs when meat or fish was thrown out to be eaten. He came to know that men were more just, children more cruel, and women more kindly and more likely to toss him a bit of meat or bone. And after two of three painful adventures with the mothers of part-grown puppies, he came into the knowledge that it was always good policy to let such mothers alone, to keep away from them as far as possible, and to avoid them when he saw them coming.

But the bane of his life was Lip-lip. Larger, older, and stronger, Lip-lip had selected White Fang for his special object of persecution. White Fang fought willingly enough, but he was outclassed. His enemy was too big. Lip-lip became a nightmare to him. Whenever he ventured away from his mother, the bully was sure to appear, trailing at his heels, snarling at him, and watchful of an opportunity, when no man animal was near, to spring upon him and force a fight. As Lip-lip invariably won, he enjoyed it hugely. It became his chief delight in life, as it became White Fang's chief torment.

But the effect upon White Fang was not to cow him. Though he suffered most of the damage and was always defeated, his spirit remained undaunted. Yet a bad effect was produced. He became malignant and morose.

His temper had been savage by birth, but it became more savage under this unending persecution. The genial, playful, puppyish side of him found little expression. He never played and gambolled about with the other puppies of the camp. Lip-lip would not permit it. The moment White Fang appeared near them, Lip-lip was upon him, bullying and hectoring him, or fighting with him until he had driven him away.

Mrs. James J. Freel Serves 18 Years as Union Leader

Mrs. James J. Freel, of New York city, who is visiting in Atlanta and attending the Dixie convention of International Stereotypers and Electrotypers. Mrs. Freel has been president 18 years of the woman's auxiliary of local No. 6 in New York and has served continuously as its president ever since. Mr. Freel is second only to Samuel Gampers in length of service as a union president, having been president of the international organization for 23 years.

BY FLORA S. OZBURN.

Mrs. James J. Freel, of New York, does not need to bask in the sunlight of her husband's name and popularity as president of the international organization of stereotypers and electrotypers, for 25 years one of the most important organizations in the world in part of the Confederacy.

She keeps step in every way with him. She has served as president of the Woman's Auxiliary No. 6 of New York City local for more than 18 years, ever since its inception, to be exact, and takes an abiding interest in everything pertaining to it.

Because of this interest and her unremitting zeal and effort in the work of this organization, she has continuously been re-elected to the highest office in the auxiliary.

Mrs. Freel is a woman of charm and strong personality, with splendid qualities of leadership; yet withal she is a "motherly type, loved by all who know her well."

When queried about the work of her organization she explained that it was formed to promote the union of the women of the world, and in order that the women might be of such assistance as they could be in many organizations.

"We are now affiliated with the Woman's Trade Union League of New York; have our own constitution and by-laws; the usual committees, including relief, hospital, visiting, etc. In the old days many men drifted into New York almost penniless and frequently ill. It was the pleasure of our women to seek these out, visit them in the hospitals, write letters for them to distant loved ones; in short, to do anything and everything we could to make them comfortable and as contented as possible. It is different now; the men do not need us so badly. They have their own visiting committees, etc. So we have a distinct place as such and feel that through the auxiliary the men know each other better because they have opportunity to know each other's families, thus promoting a splendid spirit of comradeship and contentment. We have about 50 members and our social activities include all forms of amusement, such as dancing, card parties, theater parties, etc."

Mrs. Freel is very fond of the south and has visited her on a number of occasions with her husband, who must travel over the country quite a good deal. She is proud of her "indirect connection" with the south.

Her mother, while a northern woman, had a brother who lived in the south and fought on the side of the Confederacy during the late war, and Mrs. Freel tells most interestingly of her mother's prayers each night for the safety of this brother. Also of her mother's practice of reciting poetry to her children instead of singing to them, as they sat each night on her knee, and of her particular fondness for the poem, "The Sword of Robert E. Lee."

Of interest in connection with Mrs. Freel's administration as president of the New York auxiliary for such a great length of time is the fact that Mrs. Winfield J. Keegan has been associated with her all this time, formerly as secretary but now as treasurer. Mrs. Keegan is also attending the convention in Atlanta this week.

The Goal of Health Is Lecture Subject

"The Goal of Health"—in summer time, for the babies and the grown-ups, every day of the week, morning, noon and night—is the subject which Dr. Blanche Grosche Lovelace has chosen to discuss at the Biltmore hotel Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

An invitation is extended to all who are interested in escaping the personal and commercial handicaps of ill health and who wish to see the health record of society in general improved.

An added feature of interest for Sunday's program will be musical selections rendered by Mrs. Clifford Stodchill.

SUFFERED SINCE YOUNG GIRL

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas.—"Words can not express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Every month I would have cramps and headache, and I felt like I was freezing to death. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said was 'operation.' For months I had a tired, sleepy feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to praise your medicine."

Mrs. J. B. HOLLEMAN, 2214 E. Marshall St., Greenville, Texas.

For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age.

Fair-Weather Wives

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

The doctor tapped on Marjorie's door shortly after Hollister's attorney had left her. Selwyn had acquainted her with further details of the accident. It had been sheer heroism, he declared feelingly, which had brought about the tragedy. If it hadn't been for that woman and the children in the other machine—Why did women try to drive cars when they didn't understand them? Here was one of the finest things God ever made.

Selwyn had taken himself away, rather alarmed at his own loss of self-control.

The doctor admitted Dr. Maynard and gestured him to the one cheap rocker the room boasted. He sat there, perched on the foot of the wooden bed. Her eyes were on the floor.

"It is too soon to predict, Mrs. Hollister. We have to operate, of course, if it is possible. We haven't taken him to a hospital, moving him for that would and the children in the other machine—Why did women try to drive cars when they didn't understand them? Here was one of the finest things God ever made."

He glanced about the shabby room distastefully.

"You wish to remain here?" Marjorie's eyes opened wide.

"Of course."

He made no comment, but he regarded her gravely, searchingly. He, too, knew the gossip which had gone the rounds two years before at the sudden ending of Hollister's romance and marriage. He could hardly reconcile rumor with the lovely young creature who sat before him, so incongruous in her dress and her bearing.

"The doctor would not let me go until I was comfortable, I feel. You won't be very comfortable, I fear. You made a useful little grimace. 'Neither, I fancy, will Mr. Hollister,' she replied so simply that it was a relief.

The doctor bowed a silent apology, then rather hesitantly, he continued: "What I have to ask you, Mrs. Hollister, is, would you mind my being so free of my patient's—should he recover consciousness, it would be best that he does not find you here, perhaps, his professional respect, I think, under her clear young gaze. 'Of course, I do not know your relationship—the slightest shock in his condition—' she stammered.

"Please, I quite understand. I shall keep out of the way, of course. I had fully intended to, without your warning. Please, I quite understand. I shall keep out of the way, of course. I had fully intended to, without your warning. Please, I quite understand. I shall keep out of the way, of course. I had fully intended to, without your warning."

the world at large. I am here to square an obligation with my own soul."

His admiration sprang into the doctor's eyes. Mentally he discounted all the gossip he had heard concerning her.

He bowed over the hand she extended, promised to let her know of the first change for better or worse, and left her, just as an untidy waiter appeared with her breakfast on a tray.

Marjorie looked the tray over doubtfully when it had been placed on an unsteady table by the window. A course, badly laundered napkin barely concealed its rusty edges where the enamel had worn away. A rather dry looking orange, unspiced; eggs fried to a crisp in a large, old-fashioned skillet; a platter in its own clogged grease; toast partly burned. It was an unappetizing array for the wife of a doctor.

But she was young and healthy and the night ride had given her an appetite. She did full justice to the food.

Afterward she slipped out of her frock and into the warm dressing gown in her bag. The room was chilly. It had turned cold outside, a clear, sunny day. The sky was incredibly blue. The wind whistled through the leafless trees and stirred the dust in the roadway to little eddies. The house was very still, ominously still, silenced by the figure of a tragedy.

It was close to twilight when she awoke from sleep which she had told herself would be only a cat nap. Worn out by the night ride, she had slept soundly, dreamlessly.

"No change," was the answer to her questioning eyes. "But an operation was performed by Dr. Hale, who came up from town at noon."

Marjorie crept into her room. She was staring disconsolately out of the window when a familiar car stopped at the entrance to the inn.

Dr. Wallace-Nevis, a highly offended-looking, slightly portly man, came quickly up the path.

Stock Letter.

New York, July 25.—The market has steadily broadened until nearly 500 issues are traded in daily. The undertone remains firm, and many formerly inactive groups have been featured extensively during the past week. There has undoubtedly been a considerable profit-taking in some stocks, but the trend still appears to be upward. Would continue to buy rails and oils on slight reactions. Oil will probably become the leaders in activity.

RAILWAY LABOR BOARD OVERRULES EMPLOYEES

Chicago, July 25.—The railway labor board today overruled and disallowed the plea of non-jurisdiction by counsel for railroad employees of western railroads in their wage and rule disputes and ordered the taking of testimony of witnesses subpoenaed both from the carriers and the employees.

Argument of the employees that the board was illegally assuming jurisdiction and was without power to summon witnesses to testify involuntarily was denied in a unanimous opinion of the board read by Chairman W. W. Hooper, "whether that power was questioned by the brotherhood or witnesses."

Called Abuse of Authority.

The action of the board is a lawless abuse of public authority and it denies to the employees of the railroads two undoubted constitutional rights, said a statement signed by representatives and counsel of the brotherhoods.

These rights are the right of liberty of contract and the right not to be deprived of property without due process of law, the statement added.

The representatives of the employees will continue their efforts to assert and to "protect in every possible way these constitutional rights," it was declared.

Following the ruling the board proceeded with the taking of testimony from witnesses of the carriers.

Hooper Firm in Stand.

Mr. Hooper said that the board was offering another opportunity for each witness to testify, but if he failed to do so the board would take the counsel's refusal as final and "use such means as the law conferred upon it to obtain that testimony."

The board cited nearly a dozen reasons why its power should be invoked, among them the possibility of a resort to strike if the employees' demands were not satisfactorily met.

"We cannot accept the suggestion of counsel for the employees that our intervention in the dispute is premature," Chairman Hooper said. "We do not believe that the carriers or the employees can split hairs with the board as to the exact time it should assume jurisdiction."

"Our power to subpoena witnesses is definitely shown in section 510 of the transportation act, which also permits us to invoke the aid of any United States court should the board so determine. It further specifies that any witness failing to comply faces a penalty for contempt."

Believe Interruption Likely.

"The board is authorized to function when there is a likely substantial interruption in commerce. Whether there is such a possibility has been questioned. The board believes there was substantial interruption of commerce likely to exist. On several eastern railroads of the brotherhood, of which these employees are a part, strike votes have been taken, although the dispute was settled without its necessity. It appears to us to be a policy of these organizations to deliberately resort to strike if they fail to obtain the desired agreement."

Carriers Testify.

When the carriers' testimony was started, virtually all employee chairmen, brotherhood officials and counsel left the chamber. What position they would take toward the board's ruling will be decided later. Donald R. Kiehlberg, employees' counsel, declared that the board's action was "a violation of the law."

Figures and statements are being read by the carriers, in support of their contention that "in view of action taken by the carriers, the board failed to effect a satisfactory adjudication of similar controversies we advised the board a dispute existed which was likely to substantially interrupt commerce."

"Despite any enforced layoffs, we find that on 36 of the railroads here represented employing road service, the wages of a large percentage of engineers ranged from three to four thousand dollars in 1923 and firemen from two to three thousand dollars."

The engineers and firemen are not only more than fairly, but are more than well paid. The number of hours worked in service to earn these wages are not excessive, in fact, so far as passenger service is concerned they are limited, and are not out of proportion to the service rendered."
